CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, Nov. 18.

Debate on the bill fixing the SALARIES of certain Officers therein mentioned.

attempting to court praise on the one hand, and clearly convinced that this is the proper time to fearing censure on the other, I shall neglectful of make a fland, a powerful fland give me leave both deliver my opinion on this interesting sub. to fav, fir, against every abuse of this kind. ject, hoping it will be received with the same | And if the gentleman will come forward, I candor it is given. The filling the blanks in pledge myself that I will jup him in examining this bill, or determing the salaries of the officers cinto, and preventing every improper expenditure of governmen to be provided for by it, is not a of the public money. For although it may be question simply between this house and the persans now holding those offices, but sir, it is a question in which every individual in society is more or less interested. It is what the govern. ment ought to allow their public agents or ser. vants, as a compensation for their services rendered in their several departments. And, sir, give me leave to say, I think it a question which this house, as the more immediate representatives and guardians of the rights and interests of the people, ought to decide up in the true principles of honor, justice, sound policy and strict econoties, as the bill under consideration has for its object the permanent establishment of these salalaries. We ought not to combat with the weapons of passion or prejudice, both of which are known to be the vices of the mind, and always insupported by virtue, justice or honor. The evailing policy of absolute governments has ever been to enrich their favorite few at the ex. pence of the nation.

vail in a government like ours, the very exist. ence of which, in my opinion, depends on the honor and virtue with which our public officers are selected, and the justice and economy with which they are compensated. The office of Secretary of State is an office of Itrust and high responsibility and it requires a person of the first talents to perform its duties with ability and safety to the nation. Those men have been tound, who (so their honour may it ever be said) have discharged the duties of this office with rewation to themselves, and in a manner highly conducive to the prosperity of their country, and for a compensation, filleen hundred dollars less ban the sum now proposed, until march 1799, xisting, the advanced prices of almost every ar i le of living iniconsequence of the European war and the inconvenience of the removal of public offices to the permanent seat of government, the salaries of certain officers contemplated in the bil n your table were augmented, and by an act assed by congress in the year 1802 have been ontinued untilfthis time, which actiwill soon ex. pire and salaries remain as they were previous to March 1799. The reasons, sir, which induced the legislature to pass the bill augmenting those alaries having ceased, and gentlemen in favor of the motion not having been able to offer others which appear to me sofficient, I can see no good reason why at this time we should by a perma nent law establish those salaries at the advanced sams now proposed - It is well known, that the passing the act augmenting the salaries was a s roject of very considerable alarm, and has been nade a step stone to power and preferment, by gentlemen, some of whom are now enj ying the senches arising from the augmentation of those very salaries with perfect satisfaction; and from who nat this time and on this occusion we hear cry either in favor of economy or against him taries. An honorable gentleman 'an North Jarolma, (Mr. Alston) expressed his fears that we hall not be able to retain the gentlemen who now fil those others, nor find others of equal taents willing to accept of the appointment, un ss the blank should be filled with the round sum five thousand dollars. But sir, experience aches us otherwise. It has been very candidly knowledged, even by gentlemen of the same litical sentiments with nimself (and I think very much to their honor) in the course of the present debate, that those offices were formerly illed by gentlemen whose talents and integrity were unquestionable, and for a compensation fil cen hundred dollars less than the sum now pro josed, and at a time when the means of living were equally as high, if not higher, than they now

An honorable gentleman from Pennsylvania. (M. Findley) informs us, that in the course of his long experience, both in this house and in the tate legistaure, he has never known a fingle instance of the salary of any officer being reduced. but often raised. If, Sir, any conclusion can be drawn from this statement, it is in my mind, a fufficient reason why the progress of this prevail. ing evil ought now to be arrelled.

An honorable gentleman from Virginia, laft up, (M. J. Randolph) with his usual eloquence. has faid mich in favor of the talents and discreti. on of the gentlemen who now fill the public of fices, placing the value of their fervices almost disposition to detract from the merit of those gentleman in the least, neither am I disposed to be lavish of the public money on this occasion, for from the gentlemin's own statement we are inable to compensate them in proportion to their alents and fervices. I shall therefore be fatisfied with giving them a compensation which I deem adequate to the performance of the ordinary duties of the offices to which they belong. The difference between the present permanent falaries and those contemplated by this bill being femething fhort of twelve thousand dollars the gentleman thinks it a trifling fum, a mere pepper Mr. Chittenden .- Mr. Chairman, I rise with corn faving; and he fays, if our intention is to extreme diffilence, when I consider the talent make a reduction in the expences of our governand experience of gentlemen who compose this ment, there are many other objects which he honorable house, being unaccustomed to take an has enumerated, and from which, in his opinion, active part in public debate. It is a sense of a faving might with much more propriety be duty and not a matter of vanity which induces made. This is a subject worthy of consideration, me to rise on this occasion. Therefore without and from the gentleman's own thewing, I am the opinion of some gentlemen that eleven or twelve thousand dollars is a trifling saving, still I am of a different opinion; and, Sir, I am induced to believe that the honest industrious farmer and mechanic, who are accustomed to labour in their own fiel's and shops (and of this description are a very large and respectable portion of our fellow citizens) will not consider eleven or twelve thousand dollars an inconsiderable or pepper corn saving, as the gentleman is pleas. ed to consider it. And sir although I am decidedy in favor of allowing a reasonable and ademy, without reference to particular men or par- quate compensation to every officer of government, yet when twe compare the sum of 5,000 dolls, per annum with the salaries of any of the state histors and particularly the flate which I have the honor to represent, the highest of which does not exceed seven hundred and firey dollars, or should we compare it with the salares of the other officers of the general government I book the sum proposed must appear too high or the others comparatively too low. The compersetten allowed the supreme court of the Unit. But God forbid that this policy should ever preed States is but four thousand dollars to the chief judge, and to the associate judges three thousand five hundred dolls, each; and it must be allowed, that to ful these offices it requires men of the first talents and information, who to discharge the various duties of their offices, are obliged to travel thro' the different parts of the union at a very considerable expence, while the fecretary of State and other heads of departments are at home enjoying the society of their families and friends. Thus, sir, in every point of view in which this subject has been considered. I am induced to believe the sum proposed too high, and therefore shall give my vote against the in tion for filling the blank with the sum of five thou. Sand do lars.

Mr. J. Clay. As this subject is one which will probably occasion considerable difference of opinion in the committee, it is a duty which I we to myself and to my constituents, to state in a few words, the reasons which will induce me to vote against fi ling the black with the larger sum named. I perfectly agree with the gentie. man from Virginia (Mr. Rand leh) in the general opinions he has expressed. I believe that unless sufficient inducements are held out nen of talents to accept the first ffires, government will go to rain; and I agree that those who hold them are men of talents and virtue. Withithem it has been my p ide to agree in political sentiment; and it has been my duty on several occasions to justify and support their measures. On personal considerations, therefore, I should be the last man on this floor to vote for a da mution of the salaries at present attached to these offices.

The ideas of the gentleman from Virginia are such as it appears to me, would favor any salary however extravagant, given to these officers .-He has not attempted to shew that the salarges al. lowed before the year 1799 were too low. He as objected to some items in the expences of the government that certainly militate against he ground he has taken. He has stated that he expences of clerk hire and the contingent u ds of the departments are extravagant. Now the number of the clerks and the direction of the contingent fund depend on the mere will of those who hold these offices. The gen. tleman gives them great credit for their savings. If it be necessary to save in the clerk hire and contingent funds of these departments, why have not these saving gentlemen made the ne, cessary savings? The gentleman has alluded to the nature of the offices under the government of the United States. They may be consider. ed as of three kinds; such as are menial, and deprive the individuals who hold them of some estimation in society; others, that, while they take no honor away, confer none; and others, which give honor to those who hold them. Of the first description are the offices of the clerks, which require a species of talent, an equal inte. grity with that required for the head of a depart. ment; but there is no acquisition of honor while there is a sacrifice of persunal independence.

The second description, in general, consilts of fee offices, the empluments of which depend upon contingencies subject to the control of circumstances; they may amount to, but can never exceed a certain fum. As to the last kind of ffires, which confer honor on those who hold hem. I believe with the gentleman from Vir. out of the reach of calculation. I, Sir, have no ginia that, unless there are other motives pesides those which are pecuniary, to induce a man talents and victue to accept them, five though dollars will be but a palrry consideration, if we attend to the nature of thefe offices, thall perceive that there are other inducement fuch as, to use the phrase of the gentlemen. noble fouls feel, the love of glory. But reduce these morives to mere pecuniary ones, I will if three thouland five handred dollars will . purchase a man of talents and integrity, will. additional fum of ficteen hundred dollars believe nor. The gentlem in frys, we cannot home, and fay to our constituents, while web. reduced the falaries of thefe offi ers to the flate, which they originally fload, we have not reduced ed our own. I believe that, in this point view, those who represent on this floor the faof commerce, facrifice more by holding leats this house, than officers who receive an annual compensation. I will ask if the man, whife, is plually on his own affirs, des not, by & months absence every year, fairifice moreth he whose property is invested in a farm, and who receives a handsome falary at the feat of govern ment? I believe the amount of a member's wige is about 800 dollars a year, A clerk, therefore receives double the fun that is paid to a reprefentative of the people.

The gentleman from Virginia has enumerated other articles of expences as fit subjects for n duction. If the gentlement is willing to enter in to a full review of the expences of the several is ces of the government, from that of the president to the lowest clerk, and to reduce them from pra fusion to economy. I am willing to unite with him hand in hand. But this is not the subject at present before the house. As connected with the subject I should have been glad to have head any reasons why the salaries, allowed to these of ficers, were adequate in 1799, and are inadequate now. The gentleman says that he cannot go into detail; that he is unwilling to huckster with the gentlemen who hold the offices. If a vote of this house is to be determined by any epithet with a gentleman may think fit to appropriate to a pir, ticular act, we had better rise at once and trust to chance. For any thing may be called huck.

I have reasons, which operate with force on mr mind, for filling this blank with three thousand five hundred dollars - There exists on this subject a great degree of clamour. How raised is one thing; thas it exists is another. I consider this clamour as the loud voice of the people.

I know that advantages are taken to render the measures of the present administration odious, I am unw lling, therefore, to give to the enemis of the administration any advantages that may return to them the feeptre of power which has been recently stricken from their grasp. Believing that the giving large falaries will furely have this effect; believing that the people of the state I have the honor to represent expect a reduction of the existing falaries; b lieving that a failure to reduce them will produce great clamour among the people, and that fuch clamour will be just. I shall vote in favour of filling the blank with the fmallest fum proposed.

The Ladies Of Alexandria are respectfully informed that a Sleigh is provided for their accommodation in going to the Ball to-morrow Evening, those delir. ing its attendance will please leave word at Mr. Gadsby's Bar.

The Managers.

A letter from Captain Ellwood, of the floop Harmony of Philadelphia, mentions that he is blocked up by the ice, in a fafe harbor, with feveral other veffels in Quantico Creek. Among the veffels there, he mentions the brig Superior, Capt. Campbell, and the feh'r Ann Maria, Capt, Batchelder, from Nortolk.

The following resolution has been agreed to by two thirds of each branch of the Legislature of Delaware. This state was the first to adopt the present constitution of the United States, and it has the honor to be the first in rejecting the proposed innovation.

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the state of Delaware, in general assembly met; that the amendment to the constitution of the United States proposed to the le, gislatures of the several states by the Congress of the United States on the day of in the year of our lord, one thousand eight hundred and three, be and the same is hereby disapproved by the legislature of this state, for the reasons following. 1st. Because at all times innovations of the constitution are dangerous; but more especially when the changes are dictated by party spirit, are designed for temporary purposes, and calculated to accomplish personal views.

2d. Because as representatives of a small state we are sensible that, in the nature of things, every change in the constitution will be in favor of the large states, who will never be disposed to allow, and will always have the means to prevent a variation favourable to the interests of the small states.

1d. Because, in fact, the proposed amendment does reduce the power and weight of the small states, in the case provided by the constitution for the choice of President by the house of representatives, by limiting the selection to three in. stead of five candidates having the greatest num. ber of electoral votes.

4th. Because the present mode of election gives so the small states a control and weight in the election of President and V ce President, which are destroyed by the contemplated amendment.

ch. Because it is the true and permanent in. terest of a free: people, among whim the relations of majority and minority must ever be flictuating to maintain the just weight and respectability of the minority, by every proper provision, not im peaching the principle that the majority ought to govern; and we consider the present made of election as calculated to repress the natural int _ lerence of a majority, and to secure some consideration and forbearance in relation to the mino.

6th. Because we view the existing provision in the Conflication as amongst the w fest of its regulations. History furnishes many examples of nations, and particularly of republics, in their delirious devotion to individuals, being ready to (a. crifice their liberties and dearest rights to the personal aggrandizement of their id il. The existing regulation furnishes some check to this human infirmity, by the occasional power given to a few to negative the will of the majority as to one man, leaving them every other qualified eicizen in the country for the range of their

7 h. Because we are not satisfied that the faid emendment has constitutionally passed the two honfes of Congress; the Constitution requiring the concutrence of two thirds of both houses, which in a case of such magnitude and of designed precaution, must be considered as two thirds of the entire number composing the two houses; whereas it appears that the faid amendment, is not supported by the concurrence of two thirds of the whole number of either house.

There is hardly an object which nature offers to our view, an incident that occurs, or a circumstance attendant upon our condition here below which will not afford to a well thinking mind abundant evidence, not only of the sugacity and vanity of this life, but of the utter incapacity of man in his present state of existence for perfect enjoyment. Whichever way we turn our eyes, in whatever direction we attempt to act or to enjoy, we find ourselves limited by some near and insuperable barrier, erected by our allwise Creator to stop our progress, and to admonish us if we regard that little portion of happiness of which we are capable, to keep back and not suffer our efforts, our hopes, or even our wishes on this earth to ramble beyond the limits he has prescribed. In the exercise of our very virtues we are circumscribed by the laws and conditions of our nature, by which it is ordained that the highest virtues themselves When carried to excess, degenerate into vices; and the share of earthly blessings are found to be dangerous when misused exactly in proportion as they are beneficial and conducive to happiness when managed with discretion, and enjoyed with humility, thankfulness and moderation.

Of all the blessings which man is permitted by Providence to confer upon himself by virtue and wisdom, or cast away by vice and improvidence, Liberty is the greater; it is that without which, all the other advantages of life are scanty, dull and insecure, and possessing of which man can endure the greatest degree of wordly privaothers the most deceitful and treacherous. eager pursuit only for the purpose of more completely vanishing from their sight forever. It may be called the wine of life, which, so long as men use it with moderation, invigoraces and renders them cheer- men." ful and sociable, but taken to excess proruin. Irksome as the task is to us, and much as it afflicts us to have it to say, we cannot play the traitor to our duty so far as to withhold from the people, the sad, the horrible truth, that they are at this moment in the direct high road to the extinction of their real libercies, by pursuing with all the frantic eagerness of "Youth in the Chase," illusory phantoms, in the pursuit of which the hell-hound huntsmen of Democracy, with their train of hallooing precludes all suspicion of his having an whippers in, urge them forward with all averseness to democracy. He too, has their art and ability. Every day produces some new circumstances to intimate to them their danger. Every day some new instance of those who for a time in error, were hot in the pursuit; but who convinced of their danger, have drawn in their one side, and of North Carolina on the oreins, and now turn their back upon the ther. His opinion of the federal adminisnone but those who labour under mental incapacity or wilfull blindness; who are too and patriotic virtue, can fail to discern ! them or refrain from opposing their progress. The suspicions that were raised against the federal ministers of the government, but which never could be substantiated, are now brought home, embodied into certainties, against the present administration, by some of the wisest and ablest of their own friends and advocates. The popularity of that party, and the cunning and deep concerted design with which they are making use of it to intrench themselves in power, burst from their disguise in full unblushing face upon the public sight; and among the most wise, the most virtuous, and patriotic members of the antifederal side, the alarm has for some time been begun. We hope not too late-We hope that there is not vet in the official composition of our state, as in other countries, materials left to make a bulwark of corruption strong enough to bid defiance to the country's best and truest friends. We think not. It is only by their own folly and magogues of a faction, that the people can be undone. the antifederal body who took the alarm at the rapid progress which the Jeffersonian party was making to intrench itself immovably in power, was Mr. Burr, the Vice-President. The alarm which he received, he returned back upon the faction with tenfold interest. At a great meeting he had the temerits to give as his toast. " The union of all honest men. And straight an universal clamour and uproar was raised against him as a traitor to the party-a tergiversator, and the enemy of their kind of liberty, and their honest views.

"The universal host up sent " A shout, that tore Hell's concave, and beyond " Frighted the reign of Chaos and old Night."

This first open detection of the designs of the party seemed only to whet their ap-

In proportion as things pressed upon them, they grew more malignant to all who opposed them, and perhaps no man ever underwent tions. Governor M'Kean, the supremacy of whose wisdom and talents all admit; whose republican principle none can doubt; and of Union has had demonstrable evidence—he has fallen back, and the mob of Pennsylvania, influenced and headed by their jacobin incendiary demagogues, are at drawn daggers with him. Governor Mercer, of Maryland, too, has followed his example, and erected a standard in the spirit of Mr. Burr's offensive toast; to bring about a " union of honest men." Well may the faction exclaim in fright, " omen hand bonum."

To the people of this and the contiguous states, it would be superfluous to speak of Mr. Butler, the present member in Congress for South Carolina. His conduct in the revolution has established his character as an American patriot; his zeal in the cause of the party to which he since attached himself, mistaken though it may be, taken the alarm, and we are convinced that his name will act as a conductor to communicate that alarm with as quick and penetrating effect as that of electrical fire, to the very utmost bounds of Georgia, on tration, is known by every one to have been The views of the party now in power be- extremely unfavorable; yet he has declargin to develope themselves so fully, that ed that "he considers the real views of the present administration to be more pernicious, and their measures more oppressive than blind to see or too corrupt to lay their pri- those of their predecessors."
